FULL MOON IN AQUARIUS

The Moon will be in sidereal Aquarius, which is a nice follow-up to the previous New Moon in the opposite sign, Leo. We were manifesting with regal creativity two weeks ago; now, we have the chance to work with the intellectual side of that energy. Many people use the Full Moon as a time of release. You realize things and then let them go. The astrological transits at the time of the Full Moon help us understand what is happening around us, energetically speaking.

Being aware of the transits and the energy they offer is like getting on a ride at a theme park that you've researched a bit. When the thrilling parts are also terrifying, like a big drop or a loop-de-loop, you know somewhere inside of you that "it's just a ride." Imagine if you didn't know you were on the ride though - that shit starts up and you think your chair just went nuts. You'd be like "dang this chair is crazy; I need a new chair," and really all you need to do is sit down and enjoy the ride (literally).

Another way to look at it is like a big dance. The planets put on a show and when you study the transits, it's like learning the choreography. When the Pluto part comes on, you hit the same lil dance Pluto is hitting and have that moment of energetic synchronicity. If you don't know the choreography, Pluto is still going to hit its lil dance, but you're either going to be oblivious, or trying to follow along but looking weak, or off to the side watching others who "somehow" know how to do this dance. Worse case scenario, you'll be knocked over by the dancers like it's 2007 and it's time to "Crank That" Soulja Boy in the club. That is, the planetary energy and the people who conduct it will force you out of the way.

FULL MOON IN THE HOUSES

In general, consider the themes of the house where the Moon is transiting, and the themes of the planetary ruler of the sign it's in (Saturn), including its special guest (Uranus). In the light of the full moon, we are asking to be shown what might otherwise remain subconscious, hidden, or otherwise habitual. We then need the discernment to use the information to positively influence our behaviors. Things often come to a head during a Full Moon period. One strategy is to remain steady in our commitment to observe and integrate the information before acting or reacting. Listed below are specific questions for you to think about based on the transit house position of the Moon in your chart. these are based on sidereal signs

- Aquarius rising. We love how weird you are, you should too. This Full Moon is transiting your first house. Ask yourself: How can I be more of myself, even if that means something I've never seen before? What structures might I need to set up so that I express myself more freely?
- Pisces rising. Wake up! This Full Moon is transiting your second house. Ask yourself: How can I take a revolutionary approach to my sensory experiences? What structures in my life are working for my sensory intake and what might need to be changed? This may be related to the food you're eating, the aesthetics you consume, or the materials you're physically touching (clothing fabric, etc).
- Aries rising. Calm down! Jk lolol, you just run hot; it's okay. Anyway, this Full Moon is transiting your third house. Ask yourself: What unexpected opportunities are waiting for me in my neighborhood and day-to-day interactions with my local space? What are the structures of my everyday communication patterns and do they serve me appropriately?

● Taurus rising. Wake up! This Full Moon is transiting your fourth house. Ask yourself: What unexpected news or insights am I getting about my psychological and physical foundation? That is, what's going on with the concept of my childhood home or the reality of my current home?

● Gemini rising. If no one wants to listen to you, write it in a journal. This Full Moon is transiting your fifth house. Ask yourself: Where am I being offered an opportunity to release my unconventional creative urges? What are the structures I've set up to bring my inner fire to the outside world? Are they working for me?

● Cancer rising. Your tears can be a superpower or they can be manipulative - it's up to you! This Full Moon is transiting your sixth house. Ask yourself: What shake-ups to my routine would be appropriate at this time? What structures do I have in place for rituals that enhance my psychological and physical well-being? For instance, what's the exercise routine, nutrition guidelines, or spiritual bath regimen? What needs tightening up or re-evaluating?

● Leo rising. Stop being so dramatic. Lol jk, you can't and you shouldn't; it's fun! Anyway, this Full Moon is transiting your seventh house. Ask yourself: Where am I being asked to show up in a more radical way as a partner? What structures are in play with my one-to-one relationships? Usually we think of marriage with this one, but it could also be provider-client relationships or business partnerships.

● Virgo rising. Just go organize it if it's bothering you, already! This Full Moon is transiting your eighth house. Ask yourself: What information is underground, needing my excavation? What are the structures I employ to access transmuted energy? In other words, how's my relationship with the dead? Also in play: sexual forces as a way to experience the energy of others.

● Libra rising. You really are charming, but sometimes hard work can be cool too. This Full Moon is transiting your ninth house. Ask yourself: How can I expand my worldview? What structures do I have in place to diversify my ideas? For instance, am I researching, discussing, and publishing my philosophies and spiritual musings? With what frequency and intensity, and is it working out for me?

- Scorpio rising. If people think you're too intense, these people are not for you. It's your job to be intense! This Full Moon is transiting your tenth house. Ask yourself: At what speed am I currently headed towards my career goals? What structures do I have in place to support the expression of my highest calling in public?
- Sagittarius rising. Feeling the urge to get up and go? Remember you can always do that with your mind (books, philosophy) if it's not a physical possibility. This Full Moon is transiting your eleventh house. Ask yourself: How am I being asked to show up for the collective with my ideas? What structures do I have in place to engage my social network? Are they being used to their utmost potential? Do they need to be rebuilt? Do I need to re-cast some parts in this social play? That is, are these people really my people?
- Capricorn rising. Why so serious? Lol jk we know that's just how your face looks. This Full Moon is transiting your twelfth house. Ask yourself: What knowledge opportunities are being presented to me on the astral plane? What structures do I have in place to access the universal consciousness? Twelfth house transits are best spent alone and in meditative or otherwise spiritual state. How can I get there?
